LAWN CHAIR VOLLEYBALL

Play this hilarious luau game for fun and laughs. You'll need volleyball net, lawn chairs, a beach ball (the bigger the better), and a group of people that want to have fun.

The rules are just like regular volleyball except that everyone must remain seated in their lawn chairs to play. They can use any method to keep the beach ball in the air as long as they stay in their seat and don't stand. Expect some tumbling chairs and people sliding so far down their shoulders are barely in the seat. It's all part of the fun!

HULA HOOP CONTEST

Purchase a bunch of hula hoops from the dollar store and challenge everyone to a hula hooping contest. For prizes you can create a funny "golden Hula Hoop" ribbon by stringing a gold colored bracelet through a ribbon. Create enough prize ribbons for different categories.

- Hula Hooped the longest
- Can hula the most hoops at once
- Craziest hula hoop style

MANGO BATTLE

This luau party game is simple, but hysterically fun! Two opponents face off, each holding a large plastic spoon with a mango in it. The object of the game is to knock your opponent's mango out of their spoon without losing yours.

To play, draw a 5 ft circle on the ground. Each player stands inside the circle and on the start of go they try and knock the other persons mango from its spoon. Players are not allowed to hit, punch, push, pull, or grab each other – only the spoons.

Play tournament style to crown the King or Queen of the Mango Battles.

COCONUT ROLL

Here are a couple of different ideas you can use to incorporate coconuts into your luau games. Give everyone a coconut and see who can roll it the farthest. You could also draw a small ring in the middle of the yard and see who can roll their coconut closest to the center of the ring. Why not set up some empty 2-liters or better yet, pineapples and use the coconuts to "bowl" them over.
